OVERVIEW

It's difficult to start an annual report outlining the successes of the Climate Action Network when every vital sign of the Earth is recording our failure. Whole cultures, many that have resisted colonization for centuries, are at risk of disappearing. People are fleeing flooded homes across Asia and the Pacific. The reach of mosquitoes increases in the Americas, and so does the spread of the diseases they carry. Chunks of the Great Barrier Reef lie dying. Storm surges wreak havoc on our homes. Forests that have never burnt before go up in flames. We ask: not if the Arctic will be free of ice; but when. Next year?

Against this challenge the effort of the members of the Climate Action Network may never be enough. But to our members' credit they will not shy away from that challenge. They will instead search for opportunities to push and pull a different world into being. Different, and less dangerous.

The Climate Action Network exists to support that pushing and pulling. We are a testament to our members' investment in collaboration, in systems of mutual support and reciprocity, in the recognition of the importance of care and relationships to our survival. We are an act of love: our existence a recognition that the whole-of-our-efforts needs to be greater than the sum of our individual endeavours.

“We” are also a multitude of things. “We” refers to all of the members of CANA (pg 33). “We” refers to CANA Inc, guided by the Board (pg 13) and operated by the Network Support Team (pg 15) that exists to support our membership.

We may not yet have the power we need to realise the changes we want, nor have we seen our members put themselves on a full emergency footing – but there are traces of hope in the foundations we have laid this last year.

We have built a Network that engages and connects its members (pg 19). And brings new and different voices into the conversation. We have helped align shared strategies (pg 22) and shifted both our major political parties on renewable energy policy, run the most coordinated climate election campaign in memory, and held the biggest rallies for climate action in Australian history. We have improved how we communicate (pg 25) amongst ourselves, to our supporters, and to the public. We have made an unprecedented collective investment in people-power and community organizing (pg 27), seen the first green sprouts of this work this year, knowing the full harvest will be some years away.

The work of this last year builds on those before – the Climate Movement Strategy Project and the “Seven Interventions” that are the strategic framework for all of our work:

CLIMATE ACTION NETWORK AUSTRALIA - ANNUAL REPORT FOR 2015/2016

- Resource a whole of movement perspective;
- Align strategies;
- Deliver a powerful and resonant story;
- Revitalise our grassroots constituencies;
- Build political power;
- Accelerate the energy revolution; and
- Expose the undue influence of deniers and polluters.

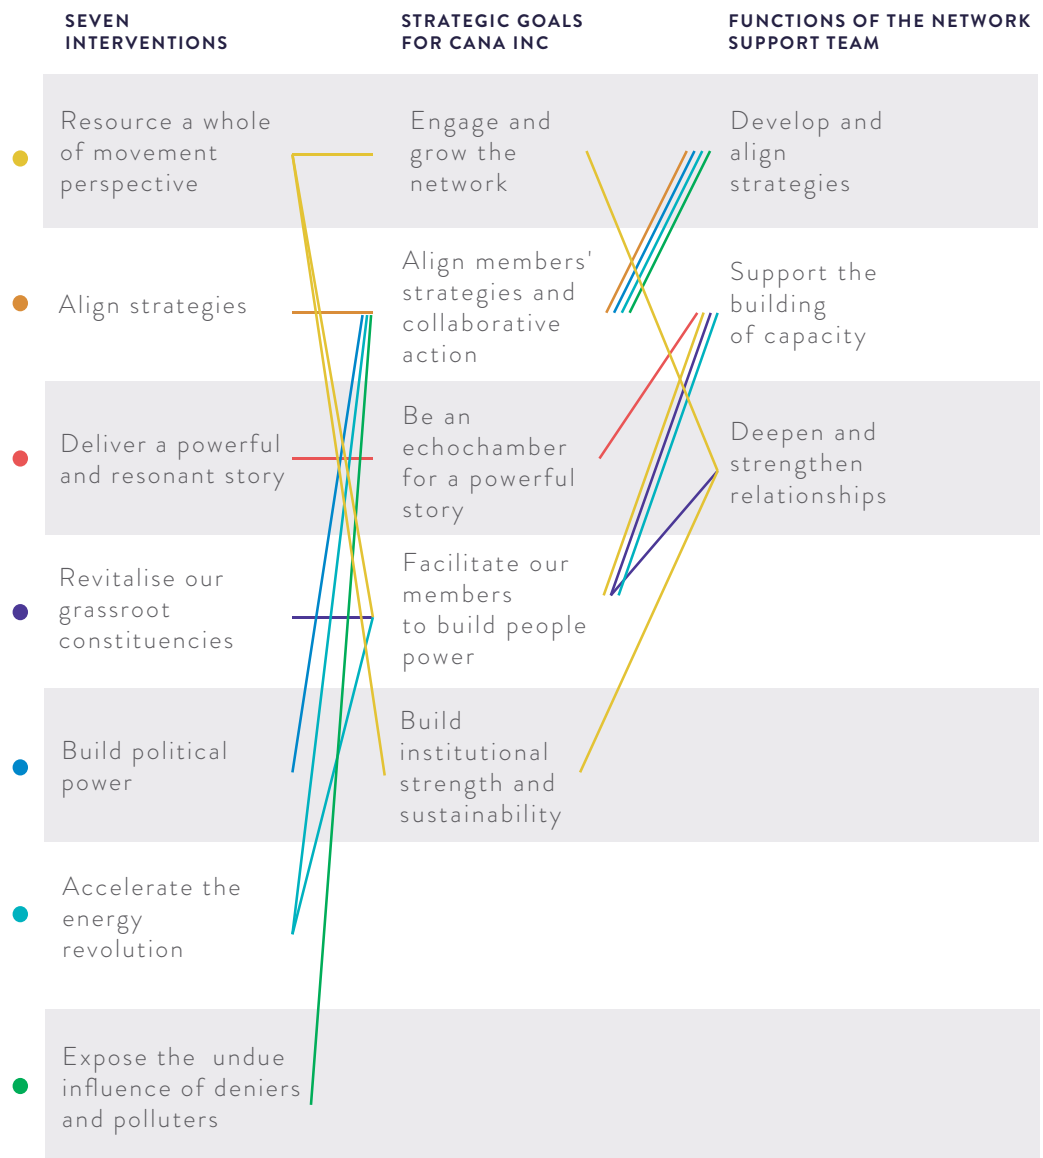

These interventions serve as sign-posts for our movement but they are not the sole responsibility of CANA Inc. We strive to be the Network Institution envisaged in the interventions and so have also undergone a year of re-invigoration of our systems, platforms, branding, and governance (pg 13).

We have done this in order to perform three key functions for the movement as a Network Support Team:

- Develop and align strategies (goal 2)
- Support building capacity (goal 3,4)
- Deepen and strengthen relationships (goal 1, 5)

CLIMATE ACTION NETWORK AUSTRALIA - ANNUAL REPORT FOR 2015/2016

These functions cut across the goals outlined in section on key activities, and of course reflect the Seven Interventions.

Our intention is that this foundation and these structures will serve us well. That they will set us up for deeper, more impactful collaborations. For newer and different voices in our choir. That they will act as ballasts against powerful storms and as paint brushes for the world we so desperately need to create.

I hope this report inspires your ongoing commitment to work with others to tackle the climate crisis with everything we have. With love. Together.

THANKS AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The work of the Network Support Team and the Climate Action Network would not have been possible without:

- The vision and financial (plus a million other) commitments of: the Australian Conservation Foundation, GetUp, Greenpeace, The Wilderness Society, and WWF;
- The financial contribution of the Robert Hicks Foundation, the B B & A Miller Foundation, the Mullum Trust, and Stephen Whately;
- The housing of our staff at great discount at the Australian Conservation Foundation, the Nature Conservation Council of NSW, and the Conservation Council of South Australia;
- Unpaid but un-ending work of our Board particularly the leadership of Victoria McKenzie-McHarg, the specialist skills of Adam Verwey and Karla Deane, and the non-NGO staff Duncan Jinks and Louise Tarrant;
- The excellent pro-bono legal advice and patience from Russell Kennedy Lawyers;

CLIMATE ACTION NETWORK AUSTRALIA - ANNUAL REPORT FOR 2015/2016

- The irrepressible Sam La Rocca who has poured hours/days/weeks/years into this project, has constantly thought about the movement first, and given a great deal of greatly appreciated wisdom, love, and care to the Network and Team;
- The loving families and friends of the Team who put up with very strange work hours, work practices, and also have to hear about climate change a lot.

ALEX RAFALOWICZ
Movement Strategist

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

When I took on the role of CANA President in October 2015 it was a very different climate movement we were working within.

Together we had completed the Climate Movement Strategy Project and with renewed focus had agreed that a reformed movement institution was necessary to build relationships, trust, strategy and capacity. As a result, CANA had been reformed, and the commitment of our members to be active participants in our reinvigorated approach to collaboration was strong.

But it was a largely untested proposition. Our full funding was yet to be secured. The positions and staff were new (including our Movement Strategist Alex Rafalowicz) and operating beyond normal capacity levels. The financial commitment requested of our members had significantly increased, as had the expectation across the network of members' active involvement in collaborations.

Whether this would work, whether our CANA members would remain committed to collaboration when the hard work really began, and whether we, as the Network Support Team and Board, would be able to deliver on those heightened expectations to support an effective movement were all questions yet to be answered.

But we were clear on one thing. We believed our movement could not deliver the powerful, strategic, and effective campaigns we need to change the game on pollution and climate change in Australia unless we worked together. The success of the 'CANA 2.0' project was essential.

I am proud to be writing to you at the end of the first full operational year of our newly reformed CANA, confident that the first stage of this project has been a success.

Together, we are a smarter, more focused, more collaborative and more effective movement than at any time in my previous ten years of involvement with the Australian climate movement. In the last twelve months the Network Support Team has grown from two to four staff members, and has recently added two more positions, to meet our capacity building role. Our membership has grown, reflecting the increased confidence of organisations and groups across the country about the value of working through CANA for a greater impact. Our financial management and governance process have been updated and reformed to ensure our organisation is well managed and fully accountable.

Most importantly, the commitment to and effectiveness of our collaborative processes continues to grow.

The year has not been without its challenges, and we have yet more to overcome as we continue to grow and improve. We continue to seek further funding for the important capacity building work of CANA. The need to diversify the reach of our movement presents challenges for both the CANA Network Support Team and our members. And the ever growing impacts of climate change cast a long shadow over the hearts of our member groups and their supporters, meaning sustainability of our movement and the individuals within it is more important than ever.

But reflecting on how far we have come in the last twelve months gives me confidence in our capacity to meet the challenges that we now face.

I would like to thank my fellow board members for their ongoing commitment to CANA, and the many hours they have put into both supporting the staff of the Network Support Team and ensuring CANA is a well managed and governed organisation. I would particularly like to thank Sam La Rocca who is stepping down from the board, for his tireless commitment to a stronger, more strategic and more effective movement, and whose leadership was integral to the reestablishment of CANA and the goals we are collectively working towards. I would also like to note the ongoing commitment of Duncan Jinks, our longest standing board member, and thank him for the continuity and steady advice he has provided throughout this transition period.

On behalf of the board I would also like to thank Alex Rafalowicz for his leadership and initiative throughout the year as the CANA Movement Strategist, and the rest of the Network Support Team staff for the commitment they bring to helping us all be a better, stronger and more powerful movement every day.

Finally, I would like to thank you - our members and donors. It's your commitment to collaboration, to working smarter together, to challenging yourselves and the way we've always worked, and to putting the good of the whole above the immediate needs of yourselves that has enabled CANA to flourish this year.

It was only the first stage, but the steps we've taken together this year start a journey we know is necessary to win. I look forward to continuing it with you next year.

VICTORIA MCKENZIE-MCHARG
President of the Climate Action Network

GOVERNANCE

The CANA steering committee, known as the Board, is primarily responsible for the governance of CANA. It is responsible for approving the organisation's mission and strategic direction, its budget and its major financial affairs, its policies on governance, management, and program implementation. It does not set specific policy direction or positions on climate change.

The Board is responsible for providing support and direction to the Movement Strategist and, where appropriate, other CANA staff. The Movement Strategist is responsible for the operational management of the organisation.

The Movement Strategist may delegate tasks to other staff, but remains accountable to the Board for his/her performance. The Board adopted a set of strategic goals, based on the strategic framework of the seven interventions, to guide the work of the Network Support Team.

At our 2015 AGM we adopted significant constitutional reforms to allow for the professionalization of the Board, including the capacity to recruit 'non-members' for specialist positions (such as treasurer and secretary).

At the time of our AGM the Board includes the following members:

STAFF

Known as the Network Support Team, the staff at CANA Inc in 2015/16 has included:

Alex Rafalowicz
Movement Strategist

Claire O'Halloran
Campaigns Facilitator (commenced September 2015)

Lindsay Soutar
Network Organiser (commenced December 2015)

Alison Platt
Administrator (commenced June 2016)

Lucy Manne
Network Organiser (finished November 2015)

Sheryl Thompson
Administrator (finished May 2016)

The Movement Strategist is the director of CANA Inc and responsible for its day-to-day operation. This role has the responsibility for working with CANA's members to set the overarching strategic direction of the 'climate movement' as well as to help spot opportunities and gaps in our collective work. The Movement Strategist works with the rest of the Network Support Team to help members plan and take action together, build their capacity, and deepen their relationships and connections.

The Campaigns Facilitator is responsible for helping our members take action together. When there is a shared strategic objective and a desire for collaboration the Campaigns Facilitator helps to provide space and support for collaboration. This support includes for ongoing "working groups" on issues, as well as helping to link members together around 'reactive' moments. The Campaigns Facilitator has also helped convene the Communication Research and Strategy Working Group and the Community Organising Hub.

The Network Organiser is responsible for the engagement and connection of the membership. This role plans and convenes our significant membership meetings and gatherings, including the Leadership Retreats, and the Assembly for Action. The Network Organiser also works to help engage allies and interested people in other 'sectors' on climate issues. The role is responsible for supporting members' engagement with issues relating to 'climate justice', and has oversight of communication to members and our various communication platforms.

The Administrator is responsible for managing the books and producing financial reporting for the Board. The Administrator ensures that CANA Inc. complies with all relevant statutory reporting obligations, and helps draft and maintain internal policies and procedures for CANA staff.

In 2016/17 CANA has welcomed two new staff members to the team. We look forward to seeing what they can deliver over the coming year:

- Paul Gorrie, as the Network Communications and Member Support Officer, who will work with the Network Organiser to improve our internal communication systems and direct engagement with members.
- Stephanie Cunio, as the Community Organising Hub Convenor, who will work with the “OrgHub” membership to deliver on their goals including: at least one inter-member organising project; the development of a community of practice around organising; and the improvement of our data and analysis capacity.

KEY ACTIVITIES

As referred to in the first part of this report the ‘key activities’ of CANA could be far too numerous to list here – for “CANA” is nothing if not its members, and our members work constantly to shift the politics, economics, and culture toward climate action and climate justice.

This section of the report, therefore, focuses on the work and activity achieved with some engagement from the Network Support Team, but almost always led by our members.

Mid-way through this financial year the Board adopted five strategic goals for the Climate Action Network as an institution – our activities for this year are reported against those.

The activities of the Network can be summarized as:

- Growing the network so more and diverse members join and participate in a wide-ranging series of events and spaces with support from the Network Support Team;
- Building alignment among members to have unprecedented movement coordination at the Federal Election, and on federal politics;
- Supporting the telling of a powerful story with increased communication materials and research shared and socialized;
- Facilitating increasing people power through our Community Organising Hub, including holding the biggest climate rallies in Australian history;
- Developing a sustainable institution as CANA Inc with a striking new brand and stronger and more professional governance.

GOAL 1 (INTERVENTION #1 AND #4): ENGAGE AND GROW THE NETWORK

This year the Network Support Team has worked to convene events that allow our current members to build and develop their relationships, whilst also putting effort into supporting 'new' voices to join the movement.

This Changes Everything Gathering Brings Together A 'Movement of Movements'

In September 2015, CANA joined with (now members) the National Union of Workers and This Changes Everything to convene an inspiring gathering with Naomi Klein and 90 activists and campaigners from across Australian civil society.

Member Meetup Events Let All CANA Members Discuss the Strategic Framework

In 2015 we brought together over 150 campaigners, activists, volunteers and staff for events in Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, and Perth.

Climate Leaders Retreats Help Set the Agenda for CANA and Demonstrate Commitment

Brought together CEO and senior staff from our 15-20 'committed to leadership' members to discuss the Communications and Strategy Working Group, a plan for the Federal Election, ongoing work on coal-closure and renewables policy, and spark new work on climate justice.

The Assembly for Action Cements the "New CANA" and the Strategic Framework

Held in March 2016 the Assembly was the largest gathering of CANA members in years. We welcomed over 120 attendees to participate in a huge variety of member-led workshops and sessions.

Aid and Development Roundtable Begins to Explore Opportunities for Global Justice

Hosted by Oxfam, the Aid and Development Roundtable saw 20 senior staff (members and non-members) from across the sector discuss 'what's next' for climate and development issues.

A24/The Leap Process Opens Conversation for Alternatives

Following on from This Changes Everything, individuals from several CANA member groups, including Greenpeace, ActionAid and the AYCC, began to prepare for a gathering of cross-sector leaders and the NST served on the steering committee.

Climate and Health Strategy Builds Plans for Engaging Crucial Sector

The Network Support Team has been working with CAHA to develop its strategy and plans. We look forward to CAHA's organising strategy really taking off in 2016/17.

Climate Justice Discussion Kicks Off – Widening our Members' Analysis

The Network Support Team began plans for a 'climate justice webinar' programme to give the opportunity for members to meet and discuss different facets of climate justice.

CANA-Chat serves as the go-to place to share climate news and analysis

Our primary email-list for members has been incredibly lively this year. It's the place where people share their responses to important events, pre-release their reports or materials, and ask questions or for help and support.

“Being a member of Climate Action Network Australia keeps us connected with other people and organisations. We share important intelligence about opportunities to win strong action of climate change. We learn from the experience of others. We can act alone, or together, but either way our response is coordinated with the rest of the movement. That makes our work more effective and packs a bigger punch. And we get to share the burden of low times, and celebrate our mutual successes. It's good to be a CANA member.”

Paul Sinclair, Director of Campaigns, Australian Conservation Foundation

GOAL 2 (INTERVENTION #2, #5, #6, #7):
ALIGN MEMBERS' STRATEGIES AND COLLABORATIVE ACTION

Our members have described the climate movement's alignment on shared-demands as unprecedented in 25 years, and the long-term investment in collaboration and trust-building is paying-off. The year was dominated by two large 'set-piece' moments: the Paris Climate Summit and the Federal Election. The Network Support Team worked to ensure that there was as much alignment as possible among our members in strategies and communication around these two moments.

There's still more to do to build better alignment around mid and long term strategies and objectives; but 2015/16 serves as a strong foundation, full of examples of how impactful our members can be when they act together.

Campaign at ALP National Conference sees Labor Adopt 50% Renewable Target

Recognising the need to keep climate and energy issues at the top of the political agenda, the Network Support Team facilitated a collaboration of groups led by The Wilderness Society to campaign around the Australian Labor Party's National Conference in July 2015.

Australian Civil Society is Heard Loud and Clear at Paris Climate Summit

Led by WWF and The Climate Institute, CANA sent a diverse delegation to the COP21 Paris Climate Summit, including grassroots activists, conservationists, Indigenous Australians, health professionals, and NGO staff.

Unlikely allies take up the call to end Fossil Fuel Subsidies

Following on from the Peoples Climate March 350.org, GetUp, WWF and ACF helped launch a collaboration calling for the end of fossil fuel subsidies in the 2016 Federal Budget and in the ALP's election policy.

Coordination on Federal Renewable Energy Policy Turns Coalition Policy Around

Solar Citizens, the Community Power Agency, GetUp and ACF, have provided ongoing leadership to a "renewables" working group that has focused on federal renewable energy policy issues including stopping the Government's proposed abolishment of the CEFC and ARENA.

The importance of a plan for the closure of coal-burning power stations goes mainstream

Environment Victoria and the ACF led a national group of members working on the closure of coal-burning power stations. This group has shared information and plans for coal-closure campaigns and elevated these issues during the federal election.

An unprecedented collaboration around the Federal Election

A shared approach to the 2016 Federal Election was launched at the Assembly for Action. The approach covered four intersecting strategies and a commitment to shared top-line policy demands. NGOs with full-time staff selected several priority areas for long-term organizing, putting pressure on blockers of climate action, and highlighting the issue in the seats of senior leadership.

Preparation for things that weren't to be – a hung parliament and a dangerous trade deal

The team's value can be seen in helping preparations with the Places You Love Alliance to prepare for a hung parliament. Similarly, the Team worked with members like Greenpeace and GetUp to scope risks and opportunities around the Trans Pacific Partnership.

Engaging with political parties to put movement demands on the agenda

The Network Support Team facilitated direct engagement and consultation with both the Labor Party and the Greens for our members (we offered to the LNP too but haven't yet got a reply!).

GOAL 3 (INTERVENTION #2, #3): BE AN ECHOCHAMBER FOR A POWERFUL STORY OF CHANGE

As a Network we are an important place for members to share best practice on communications strategy and research. As well as being a source for content, analysis and material for many of our members who don't have capacity to do 'climate communication' full time. Over the past year the Network Support Team has worked to support professional communicators at CANA members to work together on strategy and research as well as preparing shared materials for key moments.

“Being a CANA member has greatly enhanced our ability to collaborate effectively with the broader climate movement. CANA has been fantastic in bringing groups together and provided much-needed facilitation capacity to help us do our work better individually and collectively”

Charlie Wood, Campaigns Director, 350.org

Collaborating on Research and Best Practice for Climate Communications

Led first by WWF and then by ACF, the Communications Research and Strategy Group has worked together to produce guidance on best practice on climate communications and a library of research to support this practice and prevent double-up and duplication.

Telling the story of Paris and the Peoples' Climate March

The Communications Working Group (with leadership from AYCC) helped develop the messaging, collateral, and materials that were used by the 300 partner organisations around the marches.

Similarly, it was through CANA, with leadership from WWF, that key messages for the Paris Summit were circulated and taken up by those not on the ground at the UN summit.

Putting Climate and Energy on the Agenda for the Federal Election

For the election the Network Support Team helped ensure the development of key messages, coordination for national polling and testing, and assistance with the centralized monitoring for ‘bird-dogging’ tactics (led by Solar Citizens).

“CANA enables us to work with a wide range of people across many different organisations. By providing infrastructure for communications with members, it enables millions of people to unite and have a voice on the most pressing and important issues of our time. We are able to share skills, knowledge and experience. This means we can work more effectively at targeting the big issues. As Aristotle once said ‘the whole is greater than the sum of its parts’ CANA enables us to create this united whole”

Kajute O’Riordan, Organising Director, Getup

GOAL 4 (INTERVENTION #2, #4): FACILITATE OUR MEMBERS TO BUILD PEOPLE POWER

We know that people-power is what will force the change we need. More Australians taking pointed-political action on climate change is a long term objective of the movement and the Network as it will demonstrate that power.

In 2015/16 the Network Support Team partnered with GetUp to convene the “Community Organising Hub” a place for organisers to work together on shared projects, develop a community of practice, and to develop shared analysis and systems for engaging supporters.

Key examples of our movements growing people-power this year include:

The largest rallies on climate in Australian history

With leadership from the ACF, WWF, and the AYCC particularly, the Peoples’ Climate Marches in November 2015 were the largest marches on climate we’ve ever seen, but they were also filled with new and different partners calling for action. The Network Support

CLIMATE ACTION NETWORK AUSTRALIA - ANNUAL REPORT FOR 2015/2016

Team was proud to facilitate the National Organising Committee for the marches, and to help produce a formal evaluation of the marches so we are even stronger next time.

High level coordination around the Federal Election

As part of the shared effort at the Federal Election many of our members collaborated or coordinated electoral organizing efforts on the ground. This included the sharing and joint planning of organising and targeting, shared organizing spaces and infrastructure, joint tactics and events, and a structured way to learn and evaluate from the effort.

An emerging community of practice on climate and energy organizing

The coordinated efforts around the People's Climate Marches and the election did not happen in a vacuum. They were enabled by a commitment to the Organising Hub by many of our members. In this space plans and ideas were shared, learning and feedback given, and connections between members' on-the-ground plans strengthened.

GOAL 5 (INTERVENTION #1): BUILD INSTITUTIONAL STRENGTH AND SUSTAINABILITY

Support for our members to work together requires a strong institution. This year has been one of re-birth and growth for CANA Inc. and we have laid a foundation for an institution that will be able to serve our members well over the coming years.

We have improved our internal governance systems, re-launched our public facing brand and website, and managed our finances in order to support a sustainable growth in the size of our team and capacity.

A new professionalised governance structure (and its ongoing review)

At the last AGM the Board and Network Support Team brought significant constitutional reforms to the membership, helping to professionalise our governance.

A shiny new brand and website

As part of re-launching CANA Inc the Network Support Team worked to re-design our brand and website to better reflect our new mission and purpose.

Managing our finances to grow sustainably

As the Treasurer's Report outlines, CANA Inc is in a strong financial position currently as we prepare to increase our expenditure (and work) in 2016/17.

Closing our Westpac Account

CANA Inc is proud to join the growing 'divestment' movement and end our long-standing relationship with Westpac.

Preparing to evaluate the new CANA

The Network Support Team scoped an evaluation of CANA Inc and has engaged a consultant to undertake this evaluation in late 2016.

CLIMATE ACTION NETWORK AUSTRALIA - ANNUAL REPORT FOR 2015/2016

Maintaining strong links to international networks and movements

CAN-Australia is a node of the Climate Action Network International and we have engaged in their international strategy development process as well as linking to climate justice movements in our region.

“We really value being members of CANA because CANA provides the strategic overview, collaboration and resources needed for smaller organisations to more effectively engage in broader climate movement strategy”

Kate Smolski, CEO, Nature Conservation Council NSW

TREASURER'S REPORT

2015/16 was a year of increased activity at CANA including network collaboration around the Paris Climate Talks and the Federal Election, and coordination of the People's Climate March. The previous Boards of CANA, and the previous Treasurer Duncan Jinks in particular, have worked well to put CANA in a financial position where it can increase its work and support of the CANA network and member groups.

Income for CANA in 2015/16 increased through growth in CANA membership and donations. Total income for 2015/16 was $570,300, up from $296,415 in 2014/15 and $138,051 in 2013/14. The growth in income has been important for setting up the financial stability of CANA. Looking forward, however, the growth in income is not expected to continue with income projected to remain at (or potentially just below) 2015/16 levels.

CANA has invested the increased revenue into increased resourcing for collaboration and coordination of the CANA network, including growth in staff numbers and increased expenditure on member events. Expenditure for 2015/16 was $425,334, more than double the $186,784 expenditure of the previous year. The CANA Board and staff have ambitious plans for 2016/17 with expenditure budgeted to rise as a result.

The resulting surplus for the 2015/16 financial year was $144,966, compared with $109,631 in 2014/15.

This resulted in a cash balance position for CANA that improved from $160,172 at 30 June 2015 to $305,138 at 30 June 2016. As expenditure grew this position reflects just over 6 months of current operating costs.

While the cash position of CANA has improved and will allow a further investment in resourcing and services to the CANA network and its members, the ongoing financial sustainability of the organisation is still very dependent on the five 'core'

CLIMATE ACTION NETWORK AUSTRALIA - ANNUAL REPORT FOR 2015/2016

CANA members – Australian Conservation Foundation, GetUp, Greenpeace, The Wilderness Society, and WWF. As well as broadly making a very significant contribution to the climate movement, these five member groups also make the most significant financial contribution to CANA. These core members committed to an initial two year foundational funding boost to allow CANA to reform. This foundational funding is now coming to an end. As these core members assess their level of financial support in the next financial year, CANA will need to further diversify its funding sources if we are maintain this level of capacity for the movement.

Following a resolution at the 2015 AGM, CANA moved its accounts away from Westpac and to a fossil fuel free bank, Bendigo Bank. As well as now being fossil free with its banking, CANA will also earn more interest revenue with the new bank accounts, proving once again that you can do better financially by making an ethical choice.

I'd like to thank CANA's administration staff Sheryl Thompson and Alison Platt for their work in overseeing the day-to-day finances of the organisation in 2015/16, and thank Alex Rafalowicz for his coordination and support of CANA's Finance Committee.
